the book proposes an originology an investigation into the discourses on origins this leads to the identification of four different types of discourses on origins the mythical discourses biblical genesis or hesiod s theogony for example the rational discourses which either delve deeper or on the contrary attempt to disqualify the question of origins the scientific discourses of the universe of the earth of life of man as seen by the sciences and finally the phenomenological discourses which since husserl propose a completely new way of entering into the question of origins the various ways in which one can talk about origins without exclusivity and without giving preference to any of these discourses are examined here the book shows that each of these discourses has a singular structure in order to this it defines ascending and descending types of discourse and demonstrates that scientific discourses are ascending mythical ones are descending rational ones are both ascending and descending and finally phenomenological ones are neither ascending nor descending it also shows that scientific discourses on origins did not themselves originate at the time of the scientific revolution but much later in the 19th century with darwin it is biology that will pave the way to physics when it turns to discourses on origins not the other way around this book presents multiple cultural and contextual takes on working performances of academic writer thinker both inside and outside the academy with worldwide seismic shifts taking place in both the contexts and terrains of universities and subsequently the altering of what it means to write as an academic and work in academia the editors and contributors use writing to position and re position themselves as academics thinkers and researchers using as a point of departure universities and academic writing work contexts shaped by the increasing dominance of commodification measurement and performativity this volume explores responses to these evolving shifting contexts in response to the growing global interest in writing as performance this book breaks new ground by theorizing multiple identity constructions of academic writer researcher considering the possibilities and challenges of engaging in academic writing work in ways that are authentic and sustainable this reflective and interdisciplinary volume will resonate with students and scholars of academic writing as well as all those working to reconcile different facets of identity this book is a cutting edge study exploring the field of the conception and the tectonic making of place as it impinges on and thus changes the site in which it is set this book asks how it is possible to do philosophy by studying the thinkers of the past the answer is developed through readings of martin heidegger richard rorty paul ricoeur alasdair macintyre and other historically minded philosophers the result is a powerful and original account of how philosophers use the past
